

EVEXAR ESTABLISHES A NEW PARTNERSHIP WITH THE RESEARCH INTELLIGENCE UNIT, SRI LANKA.

Evexar is delighted to announce the establishment of a partnership with The Research Intelligence Unit to exclusively distribute the company's range of surgical hernia mesh and the disposable self-illuminating rigid endoscopes in Sri Lanka.

The products, covered by the agreement, are a range of surgical mesh for hernia repair and a range of fully disposable self-illuminating endoscopes. The devices are self – illuminating, require no external light-source and are fully disposable. The light-source provides the platform for the range of proctoscopes and sigmoidoscopes which will be launched in the Autumn.

Karen Cheetham, Director of Evexar said "We are delighted to have The Research Intelligence Unit as a distribution partner during this exciting phase of Evexar's expansion in the healthcare sector. It represents an opportunity for both companies to develop and grow."

ABOUT THE RESEARCH INTELLIGENCE UNIT

The Research Intelligence Unit (RIU) was originally established in 2003 with a view to addressing strategic weaknesses and vision constraints that have cowed growth in developing countries. Over the past decade, the RIU has evolved into a specialised information service provider for many public and private sector institutions in all parts of the globe. Forward thinking and innovative, the RIU uses a mix of local and foreign expertise to bring international perspectives to provide solutions for economic problems and keep decision makers informed. With health being a frontline service area, the RIU extends both consultancy and technology transfer solutions to a multifarious client base from its offices in Colombo and London.
